Thule Introduces the new Thule Canyon roof basket

Thule knows a thing or two about hauling gear. We launched our first roof basket in the spring of 1968 and since then held the position as the world leading manufacturer when it comes to transportation. The Thule Canyon roof basket has a robust but light weight steel design that will carry gear of all shapes and sizes.

The Thule Canyon is a light weight cargo basket designed to transport basically anything you want. The basket comes in one size but with the additional extension accessory, the total length of the product can be extended by 51 cm. Also available as an accessory is a pair of crossbars that will let you carry additional equipment such as a bike or kayak carrier or just stabilize your equipment.

Facts – Thule Canyon

- Low profile design combines style and function
- Tapered side walls makes it easy to load and unload
- Wind fairing is included to help airflow over your cargo
- Fits all Thule rack systems
- Basket Extension (available separately) extends the cargo area by 51 cm in length
- Accessory Crossbars (available separately) allow you to carry additional equipment or stabilize your cargo
- Lockable with Thule One-key system (available separately)

The Thule Canyon will be launched at the Automechanikashow in Frankfurt, Germany, September 16 – September 20, 2014 and will be available in stores March 2015.
